Yanks, RAF Bag 23 Axis Planes

By WES GALLAGHER

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, Jan. 16 (AP)—American and RAF fighters and even bombers battled Axis aircraft in the biggest scale aerial dogfighting of the Tunisian campaign by day and night yesterday, blasting 23 German and Italian planes from the skies, it was announced today.

Aerial activity was intense over the entire Tunisian front.

More than half the toll was taken in two actions. The Germans attempted to bomb advanced Allied airfields, and lost seven planes. Then P-38 Lightnings and B-25 Billy Mitchell bombers engaged 50 Axis transport planes off the coast and shot down seven more.

On the Tripolitanian front the British told of strongly increased patrol operations in which casualties were inflicted on Rommel's forces in several sectors, and the Italian high command reported violent ground fighting.

The Italian report said tank-supported Allied forces were on the attack again from the east, suggested Montgomery's British Eighth Army may have launched a new drive to roll Rommel back to Tripoli from the Gulf of Sirte.

The Allied communique said:

"In the course of operations off the Tunisian coast by our medium bombers and fighters, a large schooner was bombed and attacks were made on two escorted formations of enemy transport planes.

"Seven transports and two escorting fighters were shot down. Other medium bombers attacked road and rail communications near Gabes. Enemy fighters were encountered. One of them was destroyed.

"Last night six enemy bombers were destroyed. During daylight attacks on our air fields seven enemy aircraft were destroyed.

"From all these operations eight of our aircraft are missing."

IRAQ AT WAR WITH AXIS

BAGHDAD, Jan. 16 (AP)—It was officially announced today a state of war exists between Iraq and the Axis.

Iraq, a land of 4,500,000, already had broken relations with the Axis. The rupture of relations with Japan came in November, 1941, and at the same time diplomatic relations with the Vichy government were ended.

British troops moved into Iraq in May, 1941, a few weeks after an Axis-inspired revolt indicated German designs on the nation and its rich oil deposits.

Robert Johnson, BBC commentator, said in a broadcast recorded by CBS that it was particularly significant because "it is the first time that an Arab country has joined with Britain in a declaration like this."

ROSTOV PERIL GROWS AS REDS DRIVE ON

By HENRY C. CASSIDY

MOSCOW, Jan. 16 (AP)—Sweeping through 30 more towns, Red forces battled to the east bank of the Donets river 20 miles southeast of Kamensk and to the Sal-Manych hills overlooking the Manych river southeast of Rostov today as they steadily closed a semi-circle around the big Nazis base at the gateway to the Caucasus.

These positions put the Russians some 80 to 90 miles from Rostov to the northeast and southeast.

They already had driven within 60 miles of the port from the east in their smash down both banks of the lower Don.

Front dispatches indicated the battle for Rostov itself was about to begin, with the Russians set to smash across the Donets — last natural barrier to the city.

The Soviet information bureau announced the Donets was reached in a Russian advance on a 25-mile front which recaptured the villages of Borodinov and Potseluiev, on the east bank of the river.

Other forces pushing down the Moscow-Rostov rail line were said to have made gains between encircled Millerovo and Kamensk.

Southeast of Rostov, the information bureau said, "Soviet troops reached the ridge of the Sal-Manych range. Now they face the Manych lowlands with many lakes joined by canals forming the gigantic Manych canal, which plays an enormous part in irrigation of the arid steppes of the northern Caucasus."

The forward sweep was important not so much for the number of places taken as for the strategical significance of most of them.

HITLER CALLS VON PAPEN

NEW YORK, Jan. 16 (INS)—Franz von Papen, German ambassador to Turkey, "will soon go to Berlin for conference with Hitler," the Dakar radio declared today, according to CBS.

Seven United States planes were lost.

On Guadalcanal itself, a communique said, American troops continued to advance against "stiff enemy resistance." Gains of 3000 to 4000 yards were reported.

The heaviest day's fighting reported in the communique occurred Friday (Solomon time) beginning with an attack by a Catalina reconnaissance plane against a group of five Japanese destroyers 16 miles northeast of the Russell islands, 60 nautical miles northwest of the American airfield on Guadalcanal.

The Catalina scored one direct hit and two near hits on one destroyer and when last seen the vessel was aflame.

ATTACK 9 DESTOYERS

Later Friday morning a force of Dauntless dive bombers, escorted by Navy-Marine Corps Wildcat fighters and Army Airacobra fighters attacked nine Jap destroyers 140 miles northwest of Lunga Point on Guadalcanal. Two of the destroyers were reported seriously damaged.

Twelve Jap Zero fighters attempted to intercept this attack and eight were shot down. One American dive bomber was forced down and five American fighters failed to return from the action.

Also during Friday morning, an American plane patroling the air around Guadalcanal engaged and shot down three Jap Zeros.

There was no letup in the fighting during the afternoon.

Army Flying Fortresses with the Army fighter escort of Lightnings, Airacobras and Warhawks went into action against five enemy destroyers 37 miles southeast of Fasi island in the Shortland island area 300 miles northwest of Guadalcanal in the general vicinity of the Japanese air base at Munda.

DOWN 12 JAP BIPLANES

None of the enemy vessels was hit, the communique said, but 12 enemy float-type biplanes attempted to intercept the assault, and they were shot down. No American planes were lost.

U-BOAT BASE AT LORIENT RIPPED AGAIN

LONDON, Jan. 16 (AP)—Lorient, German submarine base in western France, was heavily attacked again last night, the air ministry reported today.

Targets in western Germany also were bombed during the night and fighter planes swarmed over railway targets in France, Holland and Belgium, the ministry said.

Two bombers failed to return.

In the attack on Lorient "the port was well illuminated by flares and moonlight, and after a concentrated attack large fires were seen in the dock area," the air ministry said.

The raid was the 59th on Lorient.

Of the British airmen participating in the raids on enemy territory last night one squadron leader was credited with shooting up two trains near Hazebrouck, making five separate attacks on one.

Whirlwind bombers also made several attacks on trains, and one successfully bombed railway traffic near Ypres, the air ministry news service said.

German night raiders, meanwhile, bombed three inland areas in eastern England, causing considerable property damage and a number of casualties.

U. S. STIFFENS AFRICA RULE

By KINGSBURY SMITH

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16 (INS)—The United States, it was learned authoritatively today, intends to stiffen its attitude toward all French elements contributing to political confusion in French North Africa.

There is going to be a gradual weeding out of elements failing to give complete co-operation to the Allies.

At the same time, there is to be no toleration of any move to precipitate a French political showdown in Africa which might endanger the Allied campaign there.

Grand Jury to Probe Rackets in Middlesex

The ever-widening probe of racketeering in Greater Boston has spread to Middlesex County—Malden, in particular—it was learned today, as secret sessions of Atty.-Gen. Robert T. Bushnell's investigation continued.

With volunteer witnesses from all walks of life—police officers, minor court officials, small-time bookies, runners and several top racketeers—appearing at the Ford Hall headquarters of the Bushnell probe to tell their versions, officials were confident "we're really making progress.."

The Middlesex angle will involve a much more serious charge against Dr. Harry "Doc Jasper" Sagansky, described by Asst. Atty.-Gen. William F. Hayes as "head of the racket."

GRAND JURY TO ACT

Evidence in the hands of the authorities will be presented to the Middlesex grand jury by Dist. Atty. Robert F. Bradford, who has achieved remarkable success in prosecution of crimes involving racketeering in municipal affairs of several Middlesex communities.

Testimony on additional phases of the Boston rackets was given by the closely-guarded witnesses. Establishment of temporary headquarters in Ford Hall was a move to give them every possible protection and secrecy.

Locale of the secret sessions has been changed, however, in order that volunteer witnesses will not be seen entering the hearings and thus invite intimidation or reprisal from suspects, according to an aide of the Attorney-General.

The extraordinary precautions have been taken because several of those divulging "inside data" on the syndicate's operations are described as racketeers anxious to tell their stories and clear their consciences.

Each informant, according to investigators, is being questioned alone, under strictest secrecy so that the person interviewed just before him or just after may not detect his identity.

INVITES CO-OPERATION

In a message to the Boston police—which has yet to be posted in any station house—Bushnell invited their co-operation and expressed hopes that the public would not lose confidence in them, since they are "victims of a vicious system." Now that the attorney-general has pulled the lid off the rackets situation, they are talking, his aides say.

In addition to the secret verbal statements being received, investigators disclosed that important clues about high personages in the betting syndicate are contained in letters being sent to Atty.-Gen. Bushnell at his State House office.

That his probe is following a pattern designed to snare more "big names," particularly persons hitherto considered "untouchable"

FLYNN MAKES VOW TO FORSAKE FILMS

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 16—Errol Flynn hinted today that he may forsake the movies forever, regardless of the outcome of his trial on charges of having criminally attacked two 'teen-aged girls.

The actor's statement was made as hearing of his case was adjourned until Monday after the prosecution demanded a mistrial on grounds that two women jurors had expressed opinions about his guilt or innocence.

The motion was based on affidavits from three women of the panel (who didn't get on the jury) accusing two others who did get on the jury.

"After being advised that one of the jurors allegedly was set to 'fix' me before she heard the evidence," the movie actor said, "my only hope when this is all over, is to sink back into the obscurity from which I came."

Flynn was referring to a statement contained in an affidavit which quoted Miss Elaine Forbes, one of the jurors, as saying:

"If we get on the Flynn jury, we will fix him, won't we."

JUDGE CALLS PARLEY

Judge Leslie E. Still scheduled a conference in chambers with attorneys for Monday to consider the mistrial motion made by Deputy Dist. Atty. John Hopkins.

The motion was based on affidavits filed by Mrs. Harriet R. Ponder, a member of the superior court jury panel who was not not called in the Flynn case, and by Mrs. Emily S. Blue and Mrs. Gussie Rowe, two jurors who were excused from duty.

The affidavits named the women jurors who had discussed the defendant's guilt and innocence before they were sworn in as members of the Flynn trial panel as Mrs. Lorene Boehm, wife of an industrial engineer, and Miss Forbes, secretary to a radio network executive.

Miss Forbes was quoted as saying before Christmas that "she had to get on the Flynn jury," that she would convict him, and "we would fix him."

Similar sentiments were expressed "in a vehement manner" on other occasions, the affidavit declared.

Mrs. Ponder said that before Flynn was brought to trial, Mrs. Boehm had expressed interest in seeing the actor when he made appearances in the hall of justice, and on one occasion declared:

"I am for Errol Flynn in a big way."

The affidavits of Mrs. Rowe and Mrs. Blue said, in effect, they had heard Miss Forbes say: "I just must get on that Flynn jury. I don't know what I'll do if I don't get on that jury." They said they heard her express that hope several times over a period of two days.

Mrs. Rowe and Mrs. Blue said they heard Miss Forbes express the opinion, however, that she would acquit Flynn, instead of convict him, as Mrs. Ponder declared in her affidavit.

Mrs. Blue stated that Miss Forbes had given illness as an excuse for a period of three weeks so as to avoid jury duty previous to the Flynn trial, and that she was available when Flynn's case was called. Mrs. Blue declared the various statements of Miss Forbes were heard by her, Mrs. Rowe and Mrs. Nellie Minear, who was selected as a juror.

The motion created a sensation, coming in the midst of testimony-taking. On the stand was a Hollywood entertainer—who came to court with a black wig hiding beautiful blonde tresses—testifying she heard voices behind a locked door on the night 17-year-old Betty Hansen charges the actor was intimate with her.

The witness, Lynne Boyer, was one of eight guests at the Bel-Air home of Fred McEvoy, former British bobsled expert and one-time Paris jewelry salesman, on the night of Sept. 27.

NEPONSET RIVER DRAGGED FOR BODY OF MISSING BOY
Father Finds One Victim of Mattapan Tragedy

FATHER FINDS BODY OF DROWNED SON, 4

Wandering the Neponset river bank today, alone with his grief, Arthur M. Frederick of Mattapan came upon the body of his 4-year-old son, Robert, one of two youngsters for whose bodies police, firemen and volunteers then were searching.

The hunt for Robert and his chum, William F. Hart, 5, of Babson st., Mattapan, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas K. Hart, began when the boys' tricycles were found in Fremont st., Mattapan, less than 25 feet from the river's edge.

Robert's father was threading the underbrush at the start of today's snowstorm when he sighted a small form wedged in some rocks at a bend in the river. He shouted to other searchers in boats and on the shore.

Not until the body, lying face down, had been brought in and turned over did Frederick know it was that of his own son. He took the discovery grimly, but Mrs. Margaret Hart, mother of the other missing child, became hysterical and was taken home by her husband.

The double tragedy and finding of Robert's body was all the more poignant because this was his birthday anniversary.

Police decided to drag the river after a search under floodlights failed to disclose trace of the youngsters. The grief-stricken parents of the lost children maintained a tearful watch while policemen and firemen dragged the river bed with grappling irons.

Mrs. Mae Kimball of Liversidge st., told police she saw the two little boys park their bicycles, climb a fence and head toward the river bank. Later, Mrs. Margaret Hart and Mrs. Grace Frederick, who had reported their sons missing, identified the tricycles as those of their children.

5100 JOIN COAL MINERS' STRIKE

WILKES-BARRE, Pa., Jan. 16 (AP)—At least 5100 additional anthracite miners due to report for work stayed away from their jobs today in the face of a new labor board ultimatum ordering 10,000 to 17,000 others to end their 18-day-old wildcat strike immediately.

After the order was anounced, strike leaders in Washington voted to propose resumption of production Monday.

The new idleness came as rank-and-file members expressed dissatisfaction with the WLB ruling.

Three of the five additional locals out today had adopted resolutions Tuesday saying they would strike unless a 50-cents a month increase in dues were eliminated by Jan. 15. The resolutions did not mention the strikers' demands for a $2a day wage bonus.

It was not immediately clear, however, whether the locals remained out today because of the dues and wage controversies or because of avowed dissatisfaction with a new agreement under which miners receive time and a half pay for work on the sixth successive day. Today would have been their sixth day of work.

Members of four of the locals failed to work last Saturday because of the time-and-a-half pay controversy but returned to their jobs Monday.

The fifth, with a membership of 1400 in the Hazelton, Pa., shaft colliery, had participated in the strike at its inception but returned to work earlier this week.

Low pay and part-time employment were cited by John L. Lewis as the real reasons for the strike.

Taking a shot at the New Deal with which he has been feuding for several years, the UMW chief said:

"Our miners cannot make enough in a week to by Harry Hopkins an evening dinner in the Carlton Hotel, in the way to which he is accustomed."

Yankee Nurses Happy in Africa

By RUSSELL C. LANDSTROM

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, Jan. 15 (delayed) (AP)—The American Army nurses composing the first group to arrive in this headquarters city are studying French, teaching French cooks to prepare American-style food, trying with limited success to replace the personal things they lost on their way to North Africa and enjoying a limited social life.

Such activities help to while away the off-duty hours for the nurses pending their assignment to regular hospital posts.

In the meantime they are living in quarters which they themselves describe as "luxurious," are eating extremely well and are in good health.

Although opportunities for having a good time are decidedly limited here, the girls attend dances in the American Red Cross building downtown and are dined and escorted to Hollywood movies—many of them so old they seem almost like new again.

In the opinion of First Lieut. Ethel E. Larsen of Parkville, Baltimore, Md., and Kimballton, Iowa, all the nurses are "good soldiers."

"Some of the younger ones," she said, "are bound to feel lonely and homesick once in a while—but they snap out of it very quickly."

Although it is the first time she has been out of the United States, Lieut. Larsen said she had not had time to be homesick.

"I like this country and I like the chance to do this kind of work," she explained.

Lieut. Larsen said the American nurses really were taking their study of the French language seriously.

"We've decided that we want to be able to speak with the people of this country," she declared "not always having to use the services of an interpreter."

One "bright spot" in the lives of the nurses, Lieut. Larsen said, is their effort to "show some of the cooks here what can be done with the G. I. (general issue) ration. We learn about some things, and they in turn get some eye-openers from us."

"We don't want the people back home to get any idea at all that we're downhearted or in any real need of any essential articles," she continued. "We are very low on clothes when we arrived, but we have since been pretty well supplied with G. I. clothes, some of which are brought by clipper from the United States.

"The little personal things are practically non-existent, however. We simply cannot buy them here. If I might be permitted to make one appeal it would be this—please, United States, send us some stockings."

Whenever possible, the nurses give a hand to the Red Cross, which is helping to improve the lot of civilian population, especially of the women and children.

The average age of the nurses is in the early twenties.

Ban Put on 'Fun by Bus' In Latest Edict by ODT

"Fun by bus" was banned today in the latest edict of the Office of Defense Transportation, which forbade expansion of bus service for pleasure seekers who already are barred from using their own cars.

GLAMOROUS FRANCES FARMER . . . AND TODAY IN JAIL
Family to Ask She be Removed to Private Sanitarium

"Bus service should not be supplemented to provide transportation for amusement and entertainment services beyond the normal schedules operating prior to the ban on pleasure driving," declared Joseph B. Eastman, ODT director.

He told transportation firms in 17 Eastern states and the District of Columbia the ruling applied particularly to Sunday and night-time service.

Eastman said trolley and bus companies were "swamped" with requests for added service to night clubs, dance halls, bingo games, parks and concert halls.

Additional trolley service was authorized by Eastman, however. He pointed out putting more buses into service would nullify the gas and rubber conservation aim of the ukase against pleasure driving, whereas added trolley service would not.

The ODT head suggested that entertainments be scheduled to start and end at hours which will not conflict with the change of shifts in nearby war plants. Such a plan, he said, would relieve increasingly serious crowded conditions on trolleys, buses and trains.

Meanwhile, Massachusetts home owners were again faced with prospect of heatless living quarters as Col. Thomas F. Sullivan, State oil conservator, warned the situation may become "very serious" unless new oil supplies reach the area over the week-end.

Sullivan said an oil shipment reached Boston last night but much more was necessary to avert a repetition of the crisis of two weeks ago.

North Shore small dealers complained to the OPA they were being "put out of business" by the refusal of large companies to supply them with fuel oil. The major companies declared they were running out of supplies, themselves.

DIVORCE IS BLAMED BY FRANCES FARMER

SEATTLE, Wash., Jan. 16—Movie actress Frances Farmer's mother is going to sell the family home in West Seattle and fly to Hollywood to help her "return to normal."

Disclosing that her daughter had always helped support her until last October, but that Frances now was "broke," Mrs. Lillian V. Farmer said she hoped the actress' father would leave for Los Angeles immediately and said she would leave as soon as she completed sale of the house.

"Many people can't understand an emotional, high-strung person like Frances," the mother told the Associated Press. "I think I know more about her than any person in the world. We always have been close. Right now, what she needs is six months or a year of complete rest.

"Frances is suffering from her past year's experience of frustration. She has never been happy or satisfied since she was separated from her husband, Leif Erickson, and divorced. The marriage just wasn't satisfactory, but she has been unhappy ever since they parted."

Meanwhile, in Santa Monica, Cal., the actress was taken from the county jail to the psychopathic ward of the general hospital and a petition filed in superior court asking that she be given a sanity hearing next Wednesday.

The petition was filed by Dr. Thomas Leonard, Alhambra, Cal., psychiatrist, who said the former University of Washington coed, who was one of Hollywood's most promising young actresses, told him:

"I hear voices day and night and they bother me."

Asked if she struck a movie studio hair dresser, Dr. Leonard said the actress replied:

"It's none of your business. Besides the question is insulting, irrevelant and impudent."

The hair dresser, Miss Edna Marie Burge, has filed a complaint with the city attorney, charging Miss Farmer unprovokedly smacked her on the jaw, dislocating it. Hearing was set for Jan. 20.

Mother-Love Kidnaper Gets Year Prison Term

WAUKEGAN, Ill., Jan. 16 (AP)—A circuit court jury today convicted Mrs. Anne Tyrrell Lussier, 29-year-old wife of an Army sergeant, on a charge of kidnaping a 3-months-old Waukegan child last November and fixed a minimum penalty of one year in prison.

The jury of eight women and four men, empowered to fix a penalty of from one year to life, deliberated 10 hours.

The defendant testified yesterday her love for children had prompted her to pick up and keep for 24 hours Mr. and Mrs. Stewart Botsford's son, Gary. The baby disappeared Nov. 24 after his mother left him in his buggy in front of a store.

Mrs. Lussier, who said she'd never had a child, told the jury she now was an expectant mother.

Gentle, small Marion began having bad breaks, even before she was born, for her mother died before she could give her birth. But the doctors would not give up and after six months of hard fighting finally declared that tiny Marion had a chance to live.

ALWAYS SUBDUED

She began to bloom with an ethereal sort of health—always a little more subdued than most children and also just a little too slender. But she had pale roses in her cheeks and was never without a quiet sparkle in her light gray eyes.

Then life gave Marion another tragedy. While her 17-year-old sister who brought her up was asleep one day, Marion found some matches and began to play with them. Her clothes caught on fire. A very good child, Marion's concern was not to wake her sister, so she sat on the flames. By the time her sister found her she was burned to a crisp all along her right leg, thigh and lower back. Back at the City Hospital the doctors once more fought for her life.

Throughout all the pain Marion never lost her serenity or sunny nature.

Today her small leg is very stiff and is one livid purple scar up to her tiny hips. Perhaps science, and whatever it is which has produced two miracles in her favor, will find some way of ridding her of that, too.

SUPREMELY HAPPY

But the important thing today for a small sprite who has gone through so much is that she's supremely happy. She's living with her cousin in Somerville, a kindly, charming woman, Mrs. Ruth Howard, who has an 11-year-old son, Francis Howard. Francis eggs on little Marion to all kinds of games which are good exercise for her stiff leg and never bawls her out for being slow or limping.

When Marion came home she found that Santa Claus had made a mistake and left at the Somerville house, instead of at the hospital, an enormous doll nearly as tall as her small self.

She calls the doll Helen after one of her sisters and makes her kneel, too, every night when she says her prayers.

"Who do you pray for?" this reporter asked of the gallant, enchanting mite who is so indestructible, and she replied in her tiny voice:

"My mother, she's dead, you know."

Marion's father, John E. Thompson, a cab driver, is just as convinced as Mrs. Howard that there must be a special reason for the two miracles which have enabled Marion to survive so much.

Only Partial Auto Refunds Granted Now

Motorists who registered their cars before Jan. 1, but who haven't put their autos on the road are entitled to partial refunds only from today on, the Registry of Motor Vehicles announced.

Deadline for obtaining full refunds expired at midnight, but only a half dozen applicants took advantage of the opportunity, officials reported.

DRY MARTINI GIVES NAZIS WET OLIVE

This is the story of Dry Martini—a Flying Fortress named for its pilot, Capt. Allan V. Martini of San Francisco—and of its olive-drabbed young tail gunner, Sergt. Richard F. Willis, 28, of Pleasant st., Brockton, who passed up a chance to attend officer training school to get "into action over there."

Here's some of the "action" he got in the big U. S. bombing of Lille, as disclosed by an Associated Press dispatch:

The Fortress had dropped its bombs on a Lille steel factory and was ready to return to Britain when Focke-Wulfs attacked. Shells shattered the cockpit, killing the pilot, and temporarily blinding the co-pilot.

For more than 2500 feet, the big plane lunged out of control. Just as all on board thought the Dry Martini was finished, the ship came out of the dive. The co-pilot, wounded in the leg, managed to level her off.

"I couldn't see the formation and called Sergt. Willis on the interphone,' he said, "and he gave me very good direction from where he could see. All the cockpits were caved in and the plane looked like an abandoned house."

Back in the tail, by this time, Sergt. Willis was being spattered with bullets. His parachute pack was riddled with shrapnel, and shots clipped away both shoulders of his jacket. The bombardier and navigator had their oxygen masks knocked off, but they managed to grab spares and stay on the job. Finally, Dry Martini rode out the attack and reached Britain safely.

CADETS LEAVE FOR AVIATION TRAINING—Ninety-five Greater Boston Army Air Cadets leave North Station en route to Nashville, Tenn., where they will begin their flight training. After an eight months' training course they will become pilots, bombardiers or navigators in the Army Air Corps. Capt. William J. McCracken, in charge of the trip, checks to see that all are present.

ALL CHURCHES BACKING FUND

All Greater Boston churches will observe "United War Fund Sunday" tomorrow when religious leaders of Catholic, Protestant and Jewish faiths will issue special appeals urging support of the campaign to raise $7,800,000.

Fund officials announced a United Faith program will be broadcast Sunday at 1:15 p. m., over WNAC, featuring addresses by the Rev. James Doyle, assistant director of the Catholic Charitable Bureau; Dr. Frank Jennings, executive secretary of the Massachusetts Council of Churches, and Rabbi Rubinovitz, chairman of the Greater Boston Rabbinical Ass'n.

"I am very happy to give my endorsement to this campaign which is worthy of every citizen's support," says the message from Cardinal O'Connell to be read at all Catholic churches tomorrow. "It is definitely a part of the defense program of the country and it gives an opportunity to all of us to express our faith in terms of patriotism and charity."

The following subscriptions of $500 and more from individuals were announced by the special gifts division:

$10,000—Anonymous.
5,109—Mrs. George Peabody Gardner, Sr.
2,525—Mr. and Mrs. James M. Hunnewell.

FLYNN HINTS HE'S THROUGH

at the McEvoy home, relating how Miss Hansen complained of feeling ill and left the table.

(It was then, Miss Hansen had testified earlier, that Flynn took her upstairs, disrobed her without objections on her part, and indulged in intimacies in a bedroom.)

HEARD GIGGLES

After dinner, Miss Boyer continued, she and three others of the party went into the living room for coffee. She was there, she thought, 15 minutes to a half-hour. Then she went upstairs to use a telephone.

"I tried one door," she said, "but the room was dark. I tried another, but it was locked. 'May I come in?' I called.

"A voice said, 'You can come in if you want to, we are taking a shower.' Then I heard a laugh or a giggle."

She said she could not identify the voice.

"Well," said Hopkins, "did the sound of the voice bring to your mind a certain individual?"

"Yes," she replied.

"Who was it?"

"Mr. Flynn."

As for the giggle, Miss Boyer said she wasn't sure, but she thought it was a woman's.

50 TORRID MINUTES

Earlier Betty described her 50 torrid minutes spent in the arms of Flynn. Defense Attorney Giesler asked:

"And both of you kept your shoes on all during this situation?"

"Yes," she said.

Giesler questioned her closely as to whether she had been promised immunity from prosecution in return for testifying against Flynn.

He read from a transcript of her testimony from before a grand jury, then asked if she had told the jury that she twice had indulged in acts with other men.

She replied that she did, added that she hoped she would not be prosecuted but said no immunity had been promised.

The crowd outside the courtroom was the largest of the trial, which began Monday. Officers had to clear a path for witnesses to leave the courtroom and Flynn was besieged on all sides for autographs from girls and gray-haired grandmothers.

N. E. Rookie Sailors Hunt Subs---and Like It!

By JOHN R. HENRY
International News Service Staff Correspondent

WITH THE ATLANTIC FLEET, AT SEA (Delayed) (INS)—A strange, new world was unfolding today for nearly 100 rookie sailors aboard this Atlantic fleet warship as it combed the seas for enemy submarines.

The "Boots," as veteran seafarers call their neophyte shipmates, were barely out of training camp, but had more fun on their first cruise than college freshmen during rush week at the State University.

It was difficult to find their way about the ship at first, and not all of them were quite sure whether they should say "yessir," to a boatswain's mate, and whether they could pass through the officers' wardroom without breaking the law.

Some were a little seasick, others a trifle homesick; but, in the main, they liked their new life.

Fred Risley, 18, and Charles Manally, also 18, both of Hartford, Ct., had gone through training camps together and were assigned to the same ship.

"This is the life," young Manolly said. "I'm not even scared of submarines now."

He formerly was a pin boy at a Hartford bowling alley.

Tom Saccoach, 557 Dudley st., Dorchester, Mass., told how he solved the mysteries of getting about the ship.

"I bumped into bulkheads and stumbled down a lot of ladders at first—especially at night during the blackouts," he explained, "but now I know how to get to sky control from my bunk without a scratch."

John Paris, 314 D st., South Boston, said he also, had learned his way around the passageways and ladders.

The boys liked the Navy food.

"We get all the coffee we want and there's sugar to go with it!"

Jap bombs caused little damage.

The bulletin reported British patrols had repulsed a Japanese attack Wednesday night in front of Rathedaung, 25 miles northwest of Akyab in Burma.

Reward Spurs Cops in Hunt For Harris Boy

Spurring the search for 7-year-old Malcolm "Bucky" Harris, missing Cambridge boy, Police Chief Leahy, of Cambridge, today offered a special reward to the members of his department.

"Any officer finding the child, or furnishing any information that will bring his return, will be granted two weeks' additional vacation without the loss of pay."

Such was the general order read today in all Cambridge police stations.

Chief Leahy, in a letter to the Boston Evening American, said:

"I was pleased to read in last night's edition of your valuable newspaper your plea to the public for a further search for the missing Malcolm Harris, Jr. May I at the time thank you and your newspaper for the fine service you have rendered this department in this baffling case."

Children Find Mother Strangled to Death in Detroit Apartment

Mrs. Sybilla McGrath . . . Slain

TRAGEDY COMES TO FAMILY—Neighbors, attracted by the cries of (l. to r.) Sharon, Barbara, Geraldine, Kathleen, Winifred and Patsy McGrath, found the body of their mother, Mrs. Sybilla McGrath, strangled to death. Police were called and arrested a family acquaintance of the McGraths.

Killer Strangles Mother Of 6 With Silken Gown

DETROIT, Jan. 16 (AP)—Coroner Edmund J. Knobloch said today he was convinced Mrs. Sybilla McGrath, 26, whose nearly nude body was found in her apartment yesterday, a silk nightgown knotted about the neck, was the victim of an assailant and did not end her own life.

The woman, Knobloch said, was strangled. Scratches on her throat, he added, apparently were made by her own hands in futile efforts to free herself from the silken noose that killed her.

Police questioned her husband, Harold, 27, who said he was away from home atthe time; a neighbor, Melvin Childress, 36, and his wife, Louise, 28. Childress said he called at 4 a. m. Friday for some tools McGrath had borrowed, and saw Mrs. McGrath at that time.

The woman's body was discovered later in the morning when neighbors became alarmed at the crying of her six children, the oldest a girl of seven.

11 GYMS OPEN TO JR. ARMY

Scores of Junior Victory Army members are among the boys and girls taking Commando type training in the physical education program of the recreation division of the Boston Park Department under direction of William M. "Bill" Mullen, city recreation director.

This program has been streamlined to meet present needs in physical fitness and is expected this year to outdraw 1942's participation by 85,548 persons.

Eleven gymnasiums are used, including those in East Boston, Roxbury, the South End, Dorchester, Hyde Park and Jamaica Plain.

Classes are held on Mondays and Thursdays for girls, Tuesdays and Fridays for high school boys, and Wednesdays and Saturdays for younger boys. They are held for young married women in evenings.

Mullen's annual report showed there were 2,959,894 participants in the physical and social activities of the recreation division last year drawing a total attendance of 3,526,985.

TRESCA RITES BOMBS HUNTED

NEW YORK, Jan. 16 (INS)—In a hall banked with flowers and combed for bombs by 115 patrolmen and detectives, 5000 admirers of Carlo Tresca paid final tribute to the slain radical editor today at Manhattan center.

The hunt for the murderes of the 68-year-old Italian born editor continued through his funeral services as plainclothesmen scrutinized the line of mourners which took two hours to pass his bier.

Luigi Antonini, president of the Italian-American Labor Council, presided at the "anti-totalitarian demonstration" in which 12 speakers eulogized the editor who had campaigned against both Fascism and Communism.

There was no religious service. Tresca's body lay in a gray-metal, satin-lined casket in front of the speaker's platform.

Each of the 100 wreaths and every package carried by those in the audience were searched by police as a precaution against hidden bombs.

David Dubinsky, president of the Internation Ladies Garment Workers Union, hinted that Tresca had been slain by the same group that murdered Gen. Alex Krivitsky in New York several years ago. In both cases police have suspected OGPU agents.

Among other speakers, many of whom spoke in Italian, were Socialist Leader Norman Thomas.

Sherman paid tribute to all destroyers—"the unsung heroes of this war"—asserting the destroyer "plays the most important role in the new type of task force warfare in the Pacific."

"It is the carrier's sole protection against submarines and when the enemy comes by air it is equally responsible with other units in shooting him down in flames," Sherman said.

SECRET QUIZ ON RACKETS BREAKS RING WIDE APART

because of their political influence was further indicated when his aides began a study of Suffolk County court records.

EXAMINE RECORDS

It was disclosed that legal experts will examine records of gambling cases over the past several years, starting with police applications for warrants and following through to eventual disposition in either Municipal or Superior courts.

Hayes, Bushnell's chief racket investigator, has conferred at length with Judge Joseph T. Zottoli, acting chief justice of Boston Municipal court.

A complete court picture of police efforts to curb gambling in all its forms in Boston is what is sought, according to state police officials. It was apparent that they want to learn why names of certain mysterious "top notch" figures in the syndicate fail to appear in the records.

MINOR OFFENSES

Dr. Sagansky, one of the 24 persons rounded up in the first State Police raids, has a court record of only a few minor offenses it was emphasized. Other "big shots" have managed to keep clear of the police, even though the syndicate expanded unbelievably in recent years.

The check on court records ties in with Atty. Gen. Bushnell's unusual request to Police Commr. Timilty for complete information on efforts by Boston police to stamp out number pool and horse betting in 1941-42.

Police reports show that the number of persons arrested in Boston for registering bets dropped 40 per cent from 1937 to 1941. In 1937, 279 were arrested; only 174 were arrested in 1942.

There were 135 arrested on the same charge in 1938, 212 in 1939 and 235 in 1940.

A surprising development in the probe came as police attempted to trace the history of a revolver seized in the Tuesday raids. The gun was wrapped in a newspaper dated Dec. 17, 1937, and one detective recalled this was the day following the murder of David "Beano" Breen in a downtown hotel lobby.

NUMBERS FILED OFF

Sergt. Edward J. Seiboldt, Boston police ballistics expert, after testing it with the murder bullet which has been carefully preserved, expressed the belief it was not the gun from which the death bullet was fired.

Numbers have been filed from the revolver, making the task of tracing it all the more difficult.

Meantime Atty. Edward O. Proctor, chief counsel and enforcement officer of the state OPA, in an unprecedented move informed the attorney-general's office he had ordered impounded all ration records concerning tires, cars and gasoline alleged used by persons involved in the lottery case. Prosecution by federal authorities will result if any violation of rationing laws are uncovered.

It was also learned that the attorney-general is checking banks from New York to Florida, suspecting that huge sums of money were removed from safe deposit vaults in Boston banks by a racket leader now being sought.

The check of court records, it was pointed out, is in itself a monumental task and is further evidence that no stone will be left unturned to push the drive through to a successful conclusion.

PICK OUT RECORDS

Investigators were understood to have started picking out records in the sub-basement of the courthouse, and to have started checking to determine how many search warrants were issued on gambling charges, and what disposition was made of them.

It was said that in the past many such search warrants have been returned with the notation that nothing was found when police arrived, with the result that in recent years a rule was made that all officers seeking warrants must be accompanied by superiors.

Another matter in which the attorney-general was said to be interested was to determine the disposition of second offenders who came before the courts on gambling charges, the law making it mandatory that a jail sentence be imposed.

Various other practices, reportedly used by racket men when their henchmen were arrested, were to come under the scrutiny of the state officials, it was learned.

Meantime Atty-Gen. Bushnell was said to be making a careful study of the evidence obtained in the various state police raids, particularly leads said to have been found in the Wilder st., Dorchester home of Harry Goodsnyder, brother-in-law of Dr. Sagansky.

TURNS FAUCET, GETS BEDLAM

Air Raid Alert Follows Child's Thirst

NEWINGTON, Ct., Jan. 16 (AP)—It all began when thirsty little Gayle Grant, 6, left her bed in the middle of the night to get a glass of water.

She filled the glass, and then found that she couldn't turn the water off because of a balky faucet. First the bowl overflowed. Water soon covered the bathroom floor; and before the little girl had wiped all the sleep out of her eyes, the staircase leading to the floor below resembled a waterfall.

Gayle then thought of the telephone. But choked with tears, she couldn't make herself understood to the operator.

Mrs. Ida Katz, who occupies the house with Gayle's grandmother, Mrs. Ada Grant, was awakened at that point and took charge. She explained the situation to the telephone operator.

Within a few minutes, the Newington siren, loud enough to be heard in neighboring towns, sounded an alarm. A West Hartford factory whistle chimed in.

Air raid wardens in that town were alerted. The siren and the factory whistle also were heard in Hartford, and some of the air raid wardens there were alerted too.

Meanwhile, Gayle's uncle and grandmother had returned home from a factory where they are both employed on the night shift. He said a faulty washer was to blame and substituted a new one.

Gayle never did see the firemen because they apparently were headed off before getting to the Grant home.

When quiet was restored, Mrs. Katz reported that the water had not caused too much damage.

"But," she said, "I caught a cold wading around up to my ankles and couldn't go to work."

The American fighters drove off 12 enemy Zeros, shooting down seven of them. One American fighter failed to return.

The heavy fighting on Friday had been preceded Thursday by Japanese and American aerial forays.

American aircraft made the latest reported of their continuing attacks on Munda with a raid on the night of Jan. 13-14. Results were not reported.

JAPS BOMB U. S. BASE

On Thursday morning, American planes traveled far to the northwest from Guadalcanal to attack Sorum village, three miles east of the enemy airfield on the southern end of Buka island, which lies across Buka passage from the northwestern end of Bougainville island.

No results of this action were reported. Twice on Thursday morning, enemy planes bombed American positions on Guadalcanal. The communique said installations were not darnaged, but that "U. S. forces suffered some casualties."

This was the first raid against the American base on Guadalcanal to be carried out by more than one enemy plane in weeks. It could mean a resumption of heavy Japanese air activity against the base.

Beauty

Facial Exercises

Help Prevent Sagging

By ARLINE GOULD

FACIAL EXERCISES may look like a particularly hideous brand of childish face-making, but a Hollywood film star swears they are effective in preventing sagging here and there.

One exercise is done solely with the facial muscles themselves, as they are used in conversation . . . and this is to keep the mouth from drooping.

BEAUTIFYING THE MOUTH

Others suggested really employ the massaging effect of the cushiony fingertips . . . and if you go in for home facials, you'll want to learn these particularly.

The first one, for beautifying the mouth, is actually straight from the Victorian era . . . but like a lot of other good things that were discovered then, has been quite overlooked.

The mouth, according to this star, is most important in expressing what you feel . . . but it can be a dead give-away when you're fatigued, and you must be careful that it doesn't take on the drooping lines of tiredness permanently. This exercise is taken from the old "prunes and prisms" routine. By whispering the word "prunes," you purse your lips into a tight knot. Then whisper the word "prisms," and you'll find your lips are forced to stretch into a long, thin line.

GOOD FOR EYE MUSCLES

The star who revived this exercise warns that, though you can do this exercise anywhere, any time at all, you'd better do it when no one is looking, else they'll think you've gone slightly mad.

She feels that muscles around the eyes may be spruced up a bit by closing the eyes, then, starting at the outside edges, run the middle finger down underneath the eyes toward the nose, then continue with one unbroken motion up to the inner edge of the brow line and around the outside edge of the eye again. Do this at least 10 times for each eye.

This is good for a sagging chin-line . . . place the first finger above your chin, and the other fingers below, then draw them slowly, using both hands at the same time, pressing firmly against the jaw-bone all the time, back toward the ear. Repeat five times.

YOU CAN BE BEAUTIFUL—Lenore Aubert, a new star on the film horizon, has a face whose smooth planes are guiltless of sag or droop . . . today Arline Gould gives special facial exercises designed to counteract these faults.

How Allowance Terminates

Copyright, 1943, King Features Synd., Inc.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

If my husband should be killed in action, while in the armed forces of the United States, would the government allotment continue until the war is over?

Also, would his insurance be paid in full to his beneficiary at the time of his death? T. Y.

If a service man is killed in action the allowances will terminate at the end of the month in which such notice is received.

At the same time, his insurance becomes payable in monthly installments. If the beneficiary is 30 or more years of age at the date of death of the insured, these installments shall be made in equal payments for 120 months certain, according to the age of the beneficiary. If under 30 years of age, payment shall be made in 240 equal monthly installments at the rate of $5.51 for each $1000 of insurance.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

A young man enters the Army and makes his mother his insurance beneficiary. Then he marries. Does this automatically make his wife beneficiary, or must it be stated in writing and signed by the soldier? M. L.

The insurance beneficiary may not be changed except by the insured himself. Therefore, if the young man named his mother as beneficiary, she will receive the monthly payments, after his death, unless he changes it to his wife.

A Bedtime Story

by Laura Wheeler

Pleasant dreams will be yours with these bed-socks to keep your toes warm. The ruffled version is crocheted in two colors, in an easy shell stitch. The other style is knitted on two needles, in just one straight piece, laced up the front. Pattern 526 contains directions for making bed-socks in any desired size; stitches; materials required.

Send 11 cents in coins for this pattern to Boston Evening American, Needlecraft Dept., 82 Eighth ave., New York, N. Y. Write plainly pattern number, your name and address.

BUTTON UP YOUR LIPS!

"A slip of the foot may be soon recovered; but that of the tongue perhaps never." Your words may be fatal to the safety of a ship.

MARTHA LEE'S DAILY CHAT

Enrich All Your Soups With Milk

By MARTHA LEE

THOUGH SHORTAGES and quotas may make it impossible for some of us to get all we want of our favorite beverage, there's no limit to the makings of good hot soup.

And a dish of soup enriched with milk and vegetables adds not only heartening warmth but valuable nourishment to any meal. This type of soup is economical, too, for you can utilize leftover vegetables, chopped fine or put through a puree sieve, to give flavor to a cream soup foundation. Two cups of sieved or chopped vegetables to three and a half cups of milk makes enough for four to six servings. You'll be sure of a deliciously thick soup if you thicken it with quick-cooking tapioca, for it insures a velvety smooth texture. Use two tablespoons of tapioca for the measurements suggested.

DELICIOUS BEAN SOUP

2 tbsp. quick-cooking tapioca
1 tsp. salt 2 cups bean pulp
Dash of cayenne 3½ cups milk
½ small onion 1 tbsp. butter
2 strips broiled bacon, diced
Bacon drippings
1 tbsp. minced parsley

Combine tapioca, salt, cayenne, onion, bean pulp, and milk in top of double boiler. Place over rapidly boiling water and cook 10 to 12 minutes after water boils again, stirring frequently. Add butter, bacon, drippings and parsley. Remove onion before serving. Makes 4 to 6 servings.

Note—Bean pulp may be prepared from cooked fresh or dried beans or baked beans.

POTATO SOUP

2 tbsp. quick-cooking taptoca
1 tsp. salt 3½ cups milk
¼ small onion ¼ tbsp. butter
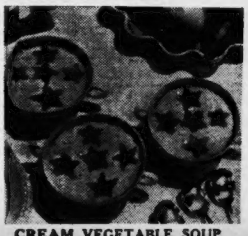
Dash of cayenne
Dash of black pepper
2 cups hot mashed potatoes
1 tbsp. minced parsley



CREAM VEGETABLE SOUP

Combine tapioca, salt, cayenne, pepper, potatoes, onion, and milk in top of double boiler. Place over rapidly boiling water and cook 10 to 12 minutes after water boils again, stirring frequently. Add parsley and butter. Remove onion before serving. Makes 4 to 6 servings.

DUCHESS SOUP

2 tbsp. quick-cooking tapioca
1 tsp. salt ¼ cups milk
⅛ tsp. pepper 2 tbsp. butter
1 tbsp. minced onion
½ cup grated American cheese
2 tbsp. chopped parsley

Combine tapioca, salt, pepper, onion, and milk in top of double boiler. Plave over rapidly boiling water, bring to scalding point (allow 5 to 7 minutes), and cook 5 minutes, stirring frequently. Add butter, cheese, and parsley, and cook until cheese is melted. Makes 4 to 6 servings.

An attractive garnish increases the appetite value of any soup. Minced parsley is tasty as well as eye appealing. Very finely minced green pepper adds zest to a cream vegetable soup. Don't forget that slices of day-old bread can be the makings of attractive croutons. Cut them in varied shapes to give them added interest. They are just as good browned in the oven as in the frying pan and, prepared in that way, make no demands on your precious store of butter or other shortening. Watch them carefully while they are browning slowly to an oven, golden color.

DESIGNERS OFFER SLEEPING CHARM FOR SPRINGTIME

By BETTINA BEDWELL

IT WON'T be long now until millions of women can come out of their flannelette nightgowns and sleeping pajamas, out of their comfortable but sometimes not beautiful sleeping clothes, and get into the new kind of sleeping beauty that lingerie designers have prepared for them.

For the transition period, when it is still cold but not freezing, there are going to be a lot of nightgowns with long sleeves and high necks, but for all that nightgowns with plenty of beauty. Actually I have seen a lot of beauties for sleeping beauties.

The materials most used are crepes and satins and delicate cottons. I like the sheer batiste nightgown best of all. And it washes so beautifully that it is a joy to own.

The nightgown in our sketch is made of white batiste, and it is taken from an original model designed by Edith Head for lovely Veronica Lake. It has a gathered shoulder yoke edged by ruffles and long sleeves with ruffles falling over the wrists. The loose folds of the gown are held at the waistline by a blue ribbon.

Fashion

IN THOSE pre-war days, which seem comparatively so un-busy now, everyone talked a lot about relaxing prettily . . . never messily or in some old rag of a negligee . . . to rest one's jagged nerves. The jagged nerves are replaced by occasional war jitters, but everyone is so really busy that even these seem blessedly few . . . and the same formula should be adhered to in those few and far-apart relaxation hours! Here is one of the new negligees, slender in silhouette . . . gathers confined to the front . . . and the soft fullness in the feminine trimming, fringed self-ruching simulating a yoke and trimming the cuffs. Relax!—ANNICE BRINK.

Smart Set Functions

By BETTY ALDEN

HERE'S A TIP to the boys. At luncheon yesterday Mrs. Malcolm Bradley French told us that most of the glamorous beauties of the Follies are going to stay at the Charlotte Cushman Club while the show is in town.

For the first time since the club moved into its spacious home in the beautiful old Sears mansion, Mrs. French, the energetic and amiable prexy, was an overnight guest night before last.

"It's a good thing I stayed when I did, for there won't be a spare bed once the Follies gals arrive," she said. "I stayed overnight because of the difficulties of transportation and I was at the club late, being hostess at our first evening musicale, a brilliant affair which attracted a fashionable crowd of Back Bay socialites. The musicale pinch hit for the famous Gardenia Ball which the club gave every January as a highlight of pre-war winters.

WITH MRS. FRENCH for lunch was Janet Bush, soprano, who got a kick out of the after-luncheon program—an interpretation and discussion of yesterday's Symphony program by Boris Goldovsky. All the luncheon guests went on to enjoy the Friday concert with a far greater understanding of the program following this first of a series of Symphony luncheons at the Copley-Plaza.

Attending both luncheon and concert were Mrs. Richard K. Thorndike in a nice violet wool dress with a fur jacket and purple velvet hat; Mrs. John Moseley Abbott, who entertained Mrs. Sargent Collier, Mrs. William Dana Orcutt and Mrs. Fuller Halsey. The latter wore one of the most beautiful full length mink capes we've ever seen. The ushers were Junior Leaguers who are accomplished musicians — Patty Matz who doubles in brass as a pianist and accordionist; Amelia Payne, pianist; Mary Elizabeth Killiam, soprano; and Evelyn Crocker, flutist. They all play in the league orchestra.

★ ★ ★ ★

C'EST LA GUERRE — What started out to be just a social visit in Washington turned out to be a wartime career for Mrs. F. Cobb Chilton of Commonwealth ave. A few weeks ago she went to visit her brother and sister-in-law, Lieut. and Mrs. Edgar H. Cobb and had no sooner landed in the Capitol then she was offered a splendid job the nature of which is secret in the air service of the War Department.

Birthday Horosope

By FRANCES DRAKE

Saturday, Jan. 16, 1943

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY—You are bright, always keen and alive. An enthusiastic individual, especially where you are interested. You have leadership qualities and are a pioneer at heart. But curb being dictatorial, sometimes overbearing. By nature you are sympathetic, ardent. Don't heed quick temper; try being more reasonable with others. Birthdate of Richard Savage, poet; Diana Wynyard, Kay Francis, motion picture actresses.

LUCKY COLOR—Green.

Send 15 cents and a large self-addressed stamped envelope to Frances Drake, Boston Evening American, Box 2228, Boston, for an additional horoscope, personal guide and lucky calendar for the first six months of 1943, giving the date and month you were born.

Karl Rohde's Band At Globe Sunday

To the music of Karl Rohde and his band, the Globe's 1-to-11 p. m. vaudeville program tomorrow will take off with some amazing ladder gymnastics by the Six Willys. Succeeding acts will be Jack Diamond and Co., in a comedy skit; Walker and Janis, whose metier, too, is comedy; Bud and Eleanor Coll, athletic specialists; Delmar, juggler, and Ferris and La Costa, in a musical offering.

On the films are "Shepherd of the Hills," co-starring Betty Field and John Wayne, and "West Point Widow," with Anne Shirley and Richard Denning.

BURGIN LEADS ORCHESTRA

At the symphony concerts next Friday afternoon and Saturday evening, Richard Burgin will conduct in the mid-season absence of Dr. Koussevitzky. He will also conduct the fourth pair of concerts of the Monday evening and Tuesday afternoon series in Symphony Hall on Jan. 25 and 26.

At the Friday and Saturday concerts, Mr. Burgin will present "Nobilissima Visione," Hindemith's Concert Suite drawn from his Ballet on the life of St. Francis. The ballet has been performed here, but the suite is being played for the first time in Boston.

Another work new to these concerts will be the suite "Sights and Sounds," by Robert Russell Bennett, the American composer. This suite bears the sub-title, "An Orchestral Entertainment," and consists of the following movements: Union Station, Recitative, Highbrows, Recitative, Lowbrows, Skyscraper, Speed. The third number will be Tchaikovsky's verture-Fantasia, "Romeo and Juliet." The second portion of the program will consist of Loeffler's "Pagan Poem," in which the piano solo will be played by Jesus Maria Sanroma, and the English horn by Louis Speyer.

Robert Casadesus is to be soloist for the Monday and Tuesday concerts. The famous pianist, whose abilities distinguished the concerts of the Friday and Saturday past, will be heard for the first time in Boston in Mozart's Concerto in C major, Koechel No. 467. Mr. Burgin will open the program with Respighi's first suite from Old Airs and Dances for the Lute, and will close it with Richard Strauss' tone poem, "Don Quixote."

'Cairo' and 'Sin Town' Bowdoin's Features

In "Cairo," Bowdoin's current film attraction, Jeanette MacDonald is cast as a movie star suspected of spy activities, and Robert Young plays a foreign correspondent. Of course, Miss MacDonald has something to sing about during the unreeling.

On the same bill is "Sin Town," a frontier story starring Constance Bennett, Brod Crawford, Andy Devine and Leo Carrillo.

British Tars Lauded in Film

The epilogue of "In Which We Serve," spoken in 91 direct and well-chosen words, deserves to stand alone as a message from the human heart voicing man's eternal struggle.

"In Which We Serve," the story of a British destroyer, H.M.S. Torrin, which will have its New England premiere at both Loew's State and Orpheum theaters Thursday, Jan. 28, tells of the fate of this ship from its setting out to sea to its destruction in the present war. The film ends after Noel Coward, its author who also plays the leading part of Capt. D, says a grave and touching farewell to those of his ship's company who survived its sinking.

The epilogue is a statement of faith by the author:

"Here ends the story of a ship, but there will always be other ships, for we are an island race. Through all our centuries the sea has ruled our destiny. There will always be other ships and men to sail in them. It is these men in peace or war, to whom we owe so much. Above all our victories, beyond all loss, in spite of changing values in a changing world, they give, to us their countrymen, eternal and indomitable pride. God bless our ships and all who sail in them."

Belittling of British War Effort Hit by Commentator

Americans are being figuratively slapped on the wrist by one of the weekly commentators currently at the Old South Newsreel Theater.

"What," he asks, "is being done to counteract the scandalous belittling of the British war effort that is rife in all sections of the U. S. A. at present?"

"We do not," this news commentator, H. V. Kaltenborn, continues, "belittle the British war effort so much as we exaggerate our own. We love to say 'best and biggest in the world.' It goes with our youth, our enthusiasm, our optimism. Our more sedate British cousins have long been familiar with this minor fault. They smile at it unless it goes too far."

Burlesque Favorites Return To Globe, Howard Next Week

Such cutaneous charmers as Diane Rowland and June St. Clair and such merry roisterers as Mandy Kaye, Eddie Leonard and George Murphy are making a bee-line to the Hub's pair of burlesque houses this week-end.

The platinum-topped Miss Rowland, assisted by the comedy caperings of Leonard, Murphy and other reliable funsters, heads the cast of the forthcoming Old Howard stage show, starting Monday.

Mandy Kaye, of the red hair and the all-out roguiness and the really lovely Miss St. Clair share the spotlight in the Globe's new show, which, as usual, will have its preview showing tomorrow at midnight.

Miss Rowland's court of cutie cuticles will be headed by Natalie Coburn, Eileen Hubert, Maria Martin and Dorothy Densmore. There will be an entire new design of dance routines by the 30 girls of the chorus. Vaudeville's representatives on the Old Howard boards include the Six Willys, ladder act; Julie Ruth, ballerina; Gates and Claire, "Flights of Dancing"; Delmar, juggler, and the Raymond Twins.

Second only to the Globe's starring June St. Clair in allure will be Helen Colby, Grace Gordon, Bette Barnes and Evelyn Kane. There will be, too, the pulchritudinous dancing Bernardolls, 30 of them, count 'em.

The Home Fronts and Global Strategy

This is the last of a series of six articles written by Former President Herbert Hoover, dealing with the situations on the belligerent, occupied and home fronts as they appear today and as they loom in the future, and their relation to global strategy:

By HERBERT HOOVER

THE FIRST deduction from this survey of the home front situation is that the degeneration upon European Axis home fronts will be continuous from now on. It will be disastrous unless they can break through the aggressive ring with which the United Nations have surrounded them. The internal pressures on their home fronts are so great that if they are to have relief they must, through their enormous land strength, break the ring in some direction.

The European Axis can apparently try in any one of four directions:

(A) Against Russia. The fanatical resistance of the Russians and their superb tactics in turning the cities into fortresses indicate that another great attack will so further increase the huge Axis losses as to finally weaken their whole military structure.

(B) Against Britain. Here they have to cross the water against the enormously increasing British-American air and naval strength, and American-supported land defenses. This seems futile to attempt.

(C) Against Northwest Africa. Here again they have to cross the water. It seems unlikely that they can hold the bridgehead in Tunis and Tripoli that they already possess.

(D) Against the Southwest, either through Greece, Crete and Syria, where again they have to cross water, or through Turkey, or through the Caucasus and Persia. With the full British-American occupation of North Africa and the Mediterranean route under possible protection, it would seem that such a movement could be stopped.

THE DEGENERATION upon the European Axis home fronts has another bearing upon military strategy. Their armies of six to seven million men behind their control of the whole European seaboard and with their interior lines are exceedingly powerful. They greatly exceed any land force that the United Nations could bring to bear in 1943.

The European sea coasts have been enormously fortified. For the British and Americans to attack their central position on land, during 1943, will be a bloody business.

On the other hand, if the Axis for some time yet be held within Europe and constantly compelled to guard this enormous coast line, the decay on their home fronts from internal degeneration, from shortages of supplies by blockade, and from aggressive attack from the air will weaken them enormously and make their defeat less costly in life.

One conclusion seems certain. The European Axis military strength will be less in 1944 than in 1943. Ours will be greater in 1944 than in 1943. The European Axis home fronts will degenerate in 1943 and 1944 while the United Nations' home fronts grow in strength.

The whole Axis fabric will be much easier to crumple with blows on land later on, and there is the possibility that Italy, especially, may crumple up without the blows.

THE JAPANESE home front is not under interior pressures as yet. They might go in three directions:

(A) Against the United States. Their experience at the Coral Sea, Midway and Guadalcanal would seem to dampen any such notions.

(B) Further action against China to prevent the establishment of large air bases there by the Allies. Owing to enormous spaces they did not succeed in overwhelming China when they had only China for an enemy.

(C) Against Russia through Siberia. This would no doubt aid Germany, but in that case the Japanese will have the danger of terrible destruction on their home front from American air fleets via Alaska and Siberia.

(D) Against India in the hope of joining the Germans, moving to the Southeast. It would be some job to overrun India, but it is not to be discounted.

Japan's great weakness is merchant ships which she is losing faster than she can build them.

In conclusion, the bearing upon military strategy of the progressive situation on the home fronts both of the United Nations and the European Axis at this moment, and probably for all 1943, seems to point to (A) aggressive sea and air attrition of the Axis; (B) tightening the ring around them; (C) extension of adequate bases for offensive action; (D) further building of American air, naval, land, merchant marine and food strength; (E) supplies to our Allies.

The result should be undoubted weakening of the Axis, guaranteeing decisive blows against their central citadels later on without uncertainties and with the saving of enormous loss of lives.

Until the European situation is on the way to disposal, the United Nations do not have sufficient naval and air forces to make direct attack upon the heart of the Japanese ring. With the European Axis disposed of or weakened, the destiny of Japan is certain.

Before I go
Here's a double health to thee;
Were it the last drop in the well
And I gasped upon the brink,
'Ere my fainting spirit fell
'Tis to thee that I would drink.
—BYRON.

JUST PREVIOUS to tossing off a drink in company of friends what do you say? Is it "Here's looking at you," "Here goes" or "Here's to happy days." I hope it is none of these. Everybody should have a more distinctive toast ready. When your companion is feminine, you should adapt your toast to her personality and points of beauty. Something such as: "Here's to your blue eyes, may your future be ever as bright as they are." Maybe I will have our Horses & Women Department prepare some advice on this latter angle . . . A London woman was recently discovered to be the possessor of 60 handbags. This is probably the world's record. The average woman has only 14 handbags . . . Four sisters in a Middle West city each married a man named John. All the marriages failed. Of course, that was just a coincidence, but the four sisters, all still young women, recently met and swore in concert that they would never again marry a man named John . . . Did you read that dispatch about the woman in the dining car who loudly squawked because the waiter wouldn't serve her a second cup of coffee? A soldier seated nearby finally arose and said: "Madame, here is one more thing I can do for my country. Take my cup of coffee." The woman took it. And despite the hopes of everybody in the dining car when she drank it she didn't choke.

NAMES: Writes Pvt. Maurice Whelan of the U. S. Army from somewhere in North Carolina: "My wife just gave birth to twins, a boy and a girl, in our home in Sacramento, Cal. What do you think of Sandra Jean and Noel as names for the newcomers?" I just don't know what to say to this justly proud pappy. The names mentioned are nice, but I think for twins they should be different. Perhaps Charles and Charlotte. Or Stephen and Stephanie. Or Adrian and Adrienne.

ANECDOTE: You may have missed the following anecdote which appeared in a contemporary publication: "When Ed Durling was a little boy living in Brooklyn, his aunt Anastasia took him on a trip to the country for a treat. Suddenly little Ed cried out: 'Look, Aunty, a boid!' His aunt Anastasia said: 'That is a bird, Edgar, not a boid.' Little Ed said: 'Well, it 'choips like a boid.'"

QUERIES FROM CLIENTS: Q—As a young woman from New England who is a stranger in New York city, I cannot understand why people stare at me when I order apple pie and cheese. Is this unusual? Do New Yorkers consider this a curious combination? Q—This query has me baffled. Apple pie and cheese is a common order in Manhattan. Besides, most waitresses in the big town take any kind of an order without blinking an eyelash. A pal of mine in New York often ordered strawberry pie a la mode with pistaschio ice cream and nobody ever stared at him . . . Q—What Jap pulled that crack about dictating the peace terms in the White House? I want to send his name to my son who is in the Navy. A—It was Adm. Isoroku Yamamoto. His exact words were: "I shall not be content with merely occupying Guam, the Philippine Islands, Hawaii and San Francisco. I am looking forward to the hour when I shall dictate the peace at the White House in Washington."

PASSING BY: Dan Shapiro. Song writer. Very adept at thinking up unusual titles for ditties. He wrote "Poor Little February," "The H. V. Kaltenborn Blues," "Sound by Western Electric" and "Who Are the Brothers Ashkenaiz," all of which are sung by Joe E. Lewis . . . Peggy Knudsen. Cutie type actress. Is no relation to auto man Bill Knudsen. Peggy's father is a fire chief in Duluth, Minn. Who remembers a song titled "My Old Man's a Fireman, What Do You Think of That?" . . . Henri Geib. Chef at Mr. S. Billingsley's Stork Club. Speaking of the Stork Club, you can check your dog there. You can do the same in many other famous Manhattan cafes.

ASIDES: Girls named Veronica never streamline their name. That's what I recently said. I am wrong again. Confesses a Washington, Pa., subscriber: "My parents named me Veronica and I changed it to Veronique" . . . The automobile manufacturers of America have an official record of a car that went 33½ miles on a gallon of gas. This feat was performed by a 4-cylinder Franklin roadster in a supervised test on Long Island in 1913. However, let me hasten to state, the car travelled at a rate of 10 miles an hour.

WOMEN, ETC.: States a saleslady of long experience: "Men are the best shoppers. They know what they want to buy and take very little time to do so. Women are the worst shoppers. They take up a lot of the salesgirls' time unnecessarily. They don't really know what they want much of the time and are always returning things. Most women are a pain in the neck anyway. Some famous woman once said: 'I am thankful I am not a man because then I would have to marry a woman.' After 10 years of dealing with women that's the way I feel about it, too."

COMMENDS 'COTTAGE PLAN' FOR HOUSING THE INSANE

By Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt

(Copyright, 1943, by United Feature Syndicate, Inc.)

WASHINGTON, FRIDAY — Yesterday was a day of interest. Mrs. Lewis Thompson met me, and we visited the Marlboro Hospital for the Insane, in Monmouth County, N. J. It is extremely interesting, because it is built on the cottage plan.

This is by far the most successful way of treating patients with mental disorders or, for that matter, patients with any ailment that means a long period of hospitalization.

We met here with some of the group of Mennonites, who are conscientious objectors, and who have volunteered to serve in hospitals for mental cases. They are a very fine group of young men and bring a spiritual quality to their work because of their religion. In many ways, this is probably raising the standard of care given the patients.

FROM THERE we went to call on Gen. van Dusen at Ft. Monmouth, N. J. Here I saw a most interesting laboratory project where women are being trained to work in producing the necessary crystals for radio work.

This is precision work, but requires only a high school education, though there are women working in this plant who have degrees of many kinds and, of course, do many other kinds of work.

I had a long talk with Gen. Clewell and Capt. Freedman, who are in charge of the psychiatric clinic here. This is the only complete clinic of its kind in a classification center and I can not help believing that it should be duplicated in every classification center in the country, particularly now that 18 and 19-year-old boys are being inducted.

IN NEW YORK CITY they have carried on an experiment in a small way with psychiatric social workers and nurses in the induction centers. Some schools have furnished histories of their graduates which can be used as background examinations at induction time

Even if this could be done everywhere which, of course, is not being done, there would still be a need for the more careful work that can be done at a classification center. All the military people who have watched this work attest to its usefulness, and are tremendously proud of what has been achieved at Fort Monmouth.

WE HAD LUNCH in the USO cafeteria in Red Bank, N. J., which was crowded, so I sat on a stool at the counter and munched my sandwich and drank my cup of coffee.

Then I met the ladies of the press and attended the Monmouth County social welfare annual meeting and spoke on such aspects of the British scene as might have some connection with the welfare work of the association.

But I have only half finished my day, and I shall have to tell you more about it Monday.

Wasn't Niles the town Bill's old friend, Ring Lardner, hailed from? . . . The "Snooks" program actually got applause, not merely laughs, for one of the most suggestive lines yet tolerated by the airwaves censors . . . The radio is gradually "blueing up" (as the comedians call a trend toward dirt) . . . the cozy fashion in which she shared the spotlight with Josh White, the great guitarist . . . Should the pair return to Boston now—a year or so after their epochal flop at the Balinese Room—it would be oh, so different . . . Another cobblestone around the neck of Miss Holman's earlier comeback was Boston's lack of sympathy for Libby as a "hard-working girl" . . . Many of her audience knew that she was the widow of the ill-starred young Smith Reynolds, and was therefore the beneficiary of some half-dozen millions (for her and her boy) . . . It is also true, however, that the Libby Boston was cold to is not the Libby of this year . . . She was in poor voice and so nervous as to be seemingly unprofessional at the Balinese Room.

HOWARD (JACOBS) JONES—he changed his name under protest at the behest of his then manager—is mourning the loss of his orchestral library and a valuable French horn . . . The Jones orchestra was put out of business by a New Bedford fire . . . Maestro Jacob-Jones hails from Milton and was a huge success through the Threadbare Thirties in London and Australia . . . There isn't a smoother musician in town . . . Paul Zara, the singing bass fiddler, is reported to be on his way to fresh fame as boss of a fine little unit . . . Paul has been breaking in the crew out of town and is nearly ready for a Boston job, his friends say . . . Zara can devote himself to his old career now. He is out of the Army on a medical discharge . . . The Navy turned him down, too.

WHILE FURLOUGHING BRIEFLY IN TOWN, Lieut.-Comdr. Paul A. Dever, the Commonwealth's erstwhile Attorney-General, demoted Joe Geary, basso-profundo of the Engineers' Club, to a disgraceful spot as No. 3 Red Sox fan . . . Geary long has been recognized as the most ardent baseball fan in Boston and holds the box just toward first base from the catcher at both Boston ball parks on a season-to-season basis . . . Bill Grimes, whose specialty is golf and gives him an excuse, had the temerity to rank Mr. Geary behind a comparative Johnny-come-lately, dubbing him the No. 2 fan of the town . . . But Comdr. Dever's brashness has probably lost him the Geary bloc of votes when Paul returns to politics.

GENE TIERNEY WINS TOP ROLE IN "HEAVEN CAN WAIT"

By Louella O. Parsons

Copyright, 1943, by International News Service

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 16—The Gene Tierney-Oleg Cassini marriage has worked out far better than anybody dared hope. When the two were first wed there were so many family complications, and now Gene and Oleg seem to have worked out all their problems beautifully. She is just back from visiting him at Ft. Riley where he is stationed. On her first day home she was greeted with some very good news. Ernst Lubitsch sent for her and told her her test was so good for "Birthday," now called "Heaven Can Wait," that she is to have the femme lead.

"Heaven Can Wait" is Lubitsch's first technicolor movie and his first for 20th Century-Fox. Irene Dunne, Margaret Sullavan and dozens of other top actresses were rumored for the lead, but it goes to little Tierney, who plays opposite Don Ameche. Rehearsals started today.

GENE TIERNEY

THERE IS NO ACTRESS who can play a Mrs. Malaprop in quite the same way as Mary Boland. She is a sure laugh-getter. Her comedies with Charlie Ruggles were tops and her "Meet the Wife" on the stage played to capacity houses all over the country. Well, Harry Joe Brown has the perfect vehicle in "The Legend of Lou" for Mary and she is now penciled in for it. Harry Joe thinks well enough of the play to take a vacation from the movies and Columbia to put it on the stage. George Bancroft, who has many fans, will have one of the principal roles, and the play will really start to town as soon as Harry Joe finishes Merle Oberon's current movie.

WHETHER LANA TURNER will return to Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studio to make her picture, "Marriage Is a Private Affair," an ironical title, is problematical. I talked with Lana's mother today, and she said her chief concern is for Lana to get well and strong. She has been really so crushed, said her mother, that her doctor has forbidden her to even discuss the subject. "Lana's greatest worry, is the baby and she is doing everything to get herself strong so she can bear the ordeal and the child will be all right," her mother said. Meanwhile, M-G-M is waiting to see if Lana will be able to go on with the picture. If she isn't, naturally it is a financial loss to them, since she is a tremendous box office favorite. But I have an idea she will make this one movie now.

BEFORE THE WAR when Hollywood welcomed any chance to laugh, Vince Barnett was a town character as the insulting waiter. He was at many social events and it was funny to see the way he "took on" people who didn't know him. I heard him tell a top Hollywood producer one night that he was a foreign exhibitor and would no longer run that company's pictures because they were so bad. The producer, fit to be tied, kept getting redder and redder. Vince took great pride in his profession, too. His father had been a professional ribber. Now, I hear, Vince has been signed for the comedy lead in Joan Carroll's picture at RKO "Petticoat Larceny," and I hope this may mean a comeback for him.

SNAPSHOTS OF HOLLYWOOD COLLECTED AT RANDOM: Friends of Maj. Anatole Litvak are frankly worried at the news he is seriously ill in a military hospital overseas; Lieut. Robert Taplinger reported dancing at the Stork Club with Ann St. George three nights in a row and looking very nifty in his uniform; Al Jolson, according to the Broadway news scout, is getting ready to produce a drama; Rita Hayworth, who has lost pounds, has gone to Palm Springs to see if she can put on weight before she starts her next picture; One of the sights of Hollywood is Mack Gordon and Archie Mayo in their Austins. Each tips the scales at close to 300 pounds; Bubbles Schinasi, wearing the highest pompadour in town, with the favorite boy friend, Arthur Hornblow; Red Skelton, who has been moping all by himself at the Biltmore Bowl every eve, had Mrs. Red there. Looks as if that reconciliation is not far away. Ozzie Nelson and Harriet Hilliard gave them a great welcome; William Fadiman, brother of the noted Clifton, takes over Kenneth McKenna's scenario post at MGM. Kenneth's a captain in the Signal Corps for the duration; "So Proudly We Hail" at Paramount continues to be "So Proudly We Ail." First Claudette Colbert was down with the flu. Then Veronica Lake went to the hospital and now it's Paulette Goddard who has a bad cold; Robert Montgomery's pals hear he has been put in command of his own torpedo squadron; Richard Thorpe will vacation in Mexico City and try to find material for a Mexican picture; one of Hollywood's most beloved guests is Senora Figueroa, who has been much entertained. Today the Jules Steins gave her a cocktail party. She also was at Verbena Hebberd's, and so many are her dates she is having difficulty keeping them. That's all today.

In the Armed Forces

Staff Sergt. George F. Mahoney, son of Mrs. Lucy R. Mahoney of Salisbury rd., Brookline, and Sergt. Charles J. Saraf, son of Mrs. Rose Saraf of Tonawanda st., Dorchester, are now stationed with a bombardment squadron at Will Rogers Field, Oklahoma.

George H. Tremblay of Clifton st., North Cambridge, recently enrolled in the U. S. Maritime Service, has been assigned to the United States Maritime Service Training Station at Sheepshead Bay, N. Y.

Pvt. Ronald H. Thompson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry L. Thompson of Allston st., Cambridge, has graduated from the Army Air Force Training Command School for Mechanics at Gulfport Field, Miss.

Gaetano J. Carulli of Beech st., Roslindale, a member of the U. S. Maritime Service, has been assigned to the Maritime Service training school at Sheepshead Bay, N. Y.

Pvt. William H. Flynn, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. William H. Flynn of Ashmont st., Dorchester, has completed his course at the aviation mechanics school at Seymour Johnson Field, N. C., and is awaiting assignment to a unit.

Sergt. Michael Demillia, son of Mrs. Marie Demillia of Foster pl., Cambridge, has been transferred from Ft. McClellan, Ala., to the Tank Destroyer Center at Camp Hood, Texas.

Remember When?

By ELSIE ROBINSON

SHE'S grouching about the new rationing. I grin, remembering when we didn't have anything else but—only no one called it by that name.

Way back when the West was "wild and woolly and full of fleas—never been curried above its knees"—you can bet your last drop of gas that most of us didn't revel in five-course dinners. But I'll remember "supper time" at home when all the banquets have been forgotten.

How many loaves of bread had been baked in that room? How many acres of gingerbread passed through the oven door? How many jars of apple butter had left their spice in its old beams? I cannot guess. But it smelled as no other room ever has or ever will . . . unless it be some specially blessed cozy corner in Paradise.

No grand linen on that supper table—no old crystal or tricky silver. But rosy faces clustering thicker than peas around the red and white checked cloth . . . watching like hungry young wolves as Mom cut great squares of fresh baked corn meal bread, smothered in molasses. Squares of corn meal and syrup, with an apple to top it off—that was the stuff that tackled and won the Far West.

LATER, thanks to the teaching of our Spanish neighbors, huge bowls of that dish still unknown to New England—"a salad." Not that Eastern horror of lettuce leaves dipped in vinegar and sprinkled with sugar, but piles of sturdy roots, crinkling greens, scarlet slices of tomatoes, soaked for an hour in olive oil, onion, garlic and old wine vinegar—eaten with fresh torn hunks of newly made bread.

Many a night, just bowls of milk and crackers with apple sauce. But whatever there was, we took it and liked it.

Meat? Yes, we had it, sometimes. Meat that would nicely serve for synthetic tires today. Heaven only knows what animal accumulated those great haunches of beef we had on occasional Sundays when The Minister came to dinner—and we children were taken aside and cautioned not to ask for a second helping. But generally one huge bowl or platter held all the makings of a meal. And the five of us managed to struggle to near or over the six-foot mark without ever having heard of vitamins.

AS FOR CANNED stuff, unless it was "home made," the woman who indulged in such extravagant fancies was little better than a slattern. The bride of 1903 who, come fall, couldn't display her hundreds of jars and crocks of jellies, jams, preserves, "rhubarb shrub," and pickles was the village goat.

And now we look at our empty shelves and call it "rationing!"

Come little common man up with your taxes
The presses are waiting to squash the Axis
The paper is ordered, the forms are all set
We're looking to you to bankroll our pet.

We've put you in movies, rubber, hotels
You're in business no matter how loud you yell
So what's one new project, more or less
If the war can be won on a printing press?

We're printing a book for over the ocean
With a new-jangled kind of a hi-falutin' notion
Twice a month issued and two bits a throw
So come little common man pack up your hoe.

Rake, and plow, and dig, and set
We're going to need every buck you can get
To peddle good will at two bits a throw
So come little common man lean on that hoe.

L'envoi
Eenie, meenie, minie Moe
You're elected—lean on that hoe.

Thought for the day: Two bits will buy a wife, a cow or both in some lands.

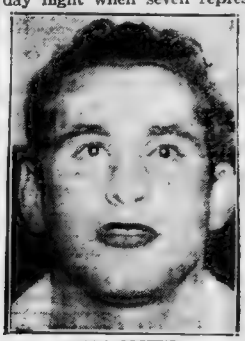
Army Boxers Against All-Americas

You will be given an opportunity to see the greatest Army boxing team ever got together at the Arena on Monday night when seven representatives of the 36th Texas Division, now stationed at Camp Edwards, battles an all-New England team that is studded with All-America and Golden Glove champions.



JOHN PRETZIE

The Army team was selected after a tournament conducted at Camp Edwards. This writer saw the final show, and it was one of the most thrilling boxing affairs I ever witnessed. Most of the Army boxers gained fame in athletics before entering service, and they went on to win new honors.

The show will be staged under the direction of the Irish-American A. A. and it is expected to furnish fine competition. George Freeman has selected a crack New England team to send against the invading boxers.

"It will be the most severe test the All-America and Golden Glove champions have had," said Freeman. "I saw the Army boxers in their final matches. I was particularly impressed by Eddie Reed, the lightweight; Pat McNamara, the middleweight, and Bill McGonigal, the heavyweight. Our local boxers are in for hard battles."

Complete Records of Army Boxers

I HAVE secured a complete record of the Army boxers as well as the names of our New England boxers who will toss punches on Monday night. The card is as follows:

TEXAS RANGERS TEAMS

118—Pvt. George Cortez, Port Arthur, Texas. Won division title past 2 years. Has had 45 fights. Won 20 by ko's, 20 decisions, 4 draws, lost 7, never knocked off feet.

126—Corp. Fred Woods, Marshall, Texas. Had 15 bouts. Won 7 ko's, 6 decisions, 2 draws. Undefeated.

135—Sergt. Eddie Reed, San Antonio, Texas. Won 16 by kayoes, 23 decisions and he was beaten twice. Golden Glove Champion of Division. Was outstanding in football, basketball, track and swimming in high school.

147—Pvt. Johnnie Zeleznock, Hazelton, Penn. Semi-finalist in tourney conducted by Philadelphia Inquirer. Has scored 8 ko's, 17 decisions and was beaten 3 times.

160—Pvt. Pat McNamara, Humpstead, Long Island. Golden Glove titlist of New York State and Long Island in 1939, 1940. Has had 92 fights. Won 38 by ko's, 60 by decisions, beaten 4 times.

175—Pvt. Thurman Maxwell, Mexia, Texas. Has had 25 bouts, won 5 by ko's and 20 by decisions. Undefeated.

Heavyweight—Pvt. Bill McGonigal, Wilmington, Delaware. Has had 20 bouts, won 5 by ko's and 15 by decisions. Undefeated.

NEW ENGLAND TEAM

118—Eddie Gullage, Chelsea.
126—Corp. Carlo Liberatore, Portsmouth, N. H.
135—Romeo Paris, Fitchburg.
147—James Sauer, Cambridge.
160—Louigi Grico, Revere.
175—Leo Nunnari, South Boston.
Heavyweight—Johnnie Pretzie, Watertown.

OPEN CLASSES

Dit Clapper Sidelined As Bruins Face Rangers

By BILL GRIMES

Minus the services of Capt. "Dit" Clapper, the Bruins will open a weekend home-and-home series tonight with the New York Rangers at the Garden.

Through their smashing victories over the Leafs and Hawks, the Rossmen are leading the league by a margin of three points over the Red Wiings, who stepped over Toronto when they beat Rangers Thursday in New York.

The Rangers are at the bottom of the N. H. L. standing enmeshed in their worse slump. Since they defeated the Bruins here on Dec. 29, the Blue Shirts have played six games, dropping four and tying two.

DEFENSIVE TEAM

With the exception of a three-game winning streak during the holidays, the Rangers have been far below par all season. Their lone spurt carried them to wins over the three ranking clubs of the loop, Bruins, Wings and Leafs.

The Rangers have come in for much criticism this season for playing defensive hockey. The truth of the matter is the Rangers always played Kitty-Bar-the-Door hockey. Under Lester Patrick they have played the percentages, packing the defense and throwing in the top scoring lines whenever opponents were shy a man.

However, in the old days, the Cook brothers and Frankie Boucher were master workmen and the fans didn't realize that they sat back and waited for scoring breaks. Coach Boucher hasn't the talent to cover up this system of play this year and the fans all around the circuit have come to recognize the fact that they get very little offensive hockey from Rangers.

FIVE SIDELINED

With Capt. Clapper out, "Bushier" Jackson will be dropped back on the defense. He will probably pair up with Jack Shewchuk.

Buz Boll, who has been a flu victim for a week, will be back at his right wing post but he cannot expect to be up to form.

RICKEY STEALS SHOW IN WEST POINT GRAB

NEW YORK, Jan. 16 (AP)—The Dodgers are going north for spring training at Bear Mountain, and we can't wait to see if anyone will uphold the Brooklyn tradition by trying the ski jump—with or without snow.

At that, Branch Rickey seems to have pulled one out of the hat by getting the use of the West Point field house for bad weather training. All the local clubs had their eyes on it, but figured there wasn't a chance of getting onto a military reservation . . . Every national motorcycle speed champion either is in the armed forces or serving as an instructor at Army camps and more than a quarter of the riding members of the American Motorcycle Ass'n are in uniform . . . Eddie Gordon, the old Iowa and Olympic broad jumper, starts his 19th season of competition today carrying the colors of the Grand Street Boys' Ass'n. Must be about time for him to switch to the grand old boys.

Will Connolly, San Francisco Chronicle: "Boxing, highly recommended by the military in this day, is good for the campus lads—more than any other sport we can name, including football. What his country needs is a few bloody noses. A bloody nose either frightens a man to death or makes him sore as hell, depending on the man."

Gene Pinter of the New Brunswick, N. J., Home News passes along this story of Jim Moore and Jack Kelly, who used to be basketball teammates at St. Peter's High School . . . Moore was the sub whose task was to relieve Kelly for a rest a couple of times each game . . . Kelly joined the Coast Guard after leaving school and was aboard the transport Wakefield when it burned at sea . . . He had to leap overboard and for several hours he swam around waiting for a rescue boat to come near . . . Kelly was almost exhausted when a boat from a cruiser drew near and a sailor jumped into the water to help him . . . As a pair of strong arms supported him, Kelly heard a voice ask, "Who's substituting now?" . . . Jack had just about enough breath left to reply, "Moore for Kelly."

MORE THAN 400 TO COMPETE IN SKATES DERBY

More than 400 contestants from every New England state except Vermont will take part in the Eighth Annual Silver Skates Derby at the Boston Garden a week from tomorrow.

While the senior classes are not as heavy as in past years, the midget and junior groups are much larger.

Out of this great field of entries there are many large fields from key cities which sponsor speed skating and rivalry is very keen among them.

The Rhode Island Skating Club will again have many standout skaters and they are after their fifth team prize in eight years but they figure to have plenty of competition from Mirror Lake Skating Club, Fitchburg, last year's winner; Worcester Skating Club, Bay State Skating Club and North Adams Skating Club, just to name a few.

The Fitchburg group just got in under the entry deadline with a large list of entrants. Along with the Fitchburg batch, entries came from all corners of New England but Vermont.

MORE MONDAY

In fact the Derby list is not yet completed even though entries closed Thursday at midnight. Every mail brings a few more letters properly date-marked and for that reason if any skater does not see his or her name below, it does not mean that he or she is ineligible. The list that follows is a partial group of the deadline entries—the rest will appear in Monday's Boston American.

The entries from the Mirror Lake Skating Club in Fitchburg were:

Alferis Ledger, Gerard Goguen, Albert Landry, Edward Robichaud, Joseph Daubhinas, Leo Babineau, Rudy Teets, Ted Bennett, Geidert Brown, John Bennett, Fulgene Brusseau, Clarence Fagan, Raymond Larcenaire, Leo Bourque, Andre Forest, Joseph Boucher, Oscar Boucher, Robert Le Prade, George Dufour, Roger Boucher, Lorreita La Prade, Louise Hawkens, Theresa Pichande and Doris LaBlanc.

Other entries were:

John O'Connor, Cambridge; Thomas O'Connor, Cambridge; Gloria Ginsberg, Brookline; Grace Ginsberg, Brookline; Vivian Cohen, Brookline; Edwin Wyman, Dorchester; Stanley Olech, Boston; Ann Dereszer, Worcester; Charles Meehan, Worcester; Harry Dodaklan, Worcester; Sarkas Dodaklan, Worcester; Edward Grant, Worcester; Barbara Ann Grant, Worcester; Patricia Hardiman, South Boston; William Cleary, Cambridge; Mary McManus, Cambridge; William McManus, Cambridge, Donald McManus, Cambridge; Priscilla Taylor, Arlington; William MacGregor, Malden; Maurice Dillon, Jr., Cambridge; Edward Hanlon, Cambridge.

Dolores La Chapelle, Boston; John Payne, Worcester; Beernard Kaufman, Malden; Dawn Fuller, Bedford; Jane M. Donnelly, Worcester; Edward Harrity, Worcester; Robert Carey, Malden; Ruth Kelly, East Boston; Dorothy Kelly, East Boston; Americo Padletti, East Boston; Lonname Alexander, East Boston; Edward Walters, Dorchester; Betty Roscoel, Worcester; Nancy Lee Cotter, Somerville; Julia Tkaczyk, Gardner; Naidean MacWilliams, Roslindale; Edgar Leger, Sudbury; Rita Doran, Medford; Albert Evans, West Newton; John Donovan, Arlington; Connie Clark, Cambridge; Joseph Ford, Belmont.

NEWBURG, N. Y., Jan. 16 (AP)—More than 100 speed skaters have filed their entries for the middle Atlantic outdoor championships to be held here Jan. 24.

Heading the entries in the men's senior events are Leo Lavalle of Pawtucket, R. I., last year's winner; Don Jay of Newburg and Joe Bree of New York City, second and third, respectively, in 1942. Carmelita Landry of Fitchburg, Mass., national and North American titleholder, tops the women's entries.

SUBS 'STEAL' B. B. A. SHOW

A fight which wasn't scheduled, an hilarious four-rounder between Sam Shumway, Webster, 182, and Dave Horblitt, West End, 190, "stole" the BBA show before 2898 subscribers who pitched in a gross of $3370 and a net of $3052 at Mechanics Building.

There was to have been a triple-header, but Manuel Rossa, booked to fight Larry Pacino, Roxbury, couldn't get to the Hub. His manager wired that he had been pitched off a train from New York to Boston at the last minute when the military took full charge of the rattler.

So Matchmaker Jack O'Brien of the B. B. A. hastily arranged two fours. One of the fours was Horblitt vs. Shumway, two young men who like to fight and throw punches and take it, if necessary.

Neither, it must be admitted, was in superb condition. Horblitt was heavy through the middle. Shumway seemed a bit groggy, a night worker who could use some sleep. From the first to the last bell, Horbzlitt and Shumway, missing as many punches as they connected with, had the 3000 fans roaring.

The twin features, both eight-rounders, were won by Fredy Cabral, Camzridge, 150, and George "Sonny" Horne, Niles, Ohio, 159. They beat Phil Norman, New York, 148, and Eddie Ellis, Quincy, 154, respectively, to decisions.

Willard Buckless, Saugus, 154, made his professional debut a success by slamming Mel Smallwood, Boston, 153, for a four-round decision.

Frank Ross, North End, 148, decisioned Tony Campo, Providence, 151, in four. Jackie Caparell, Roxbury, 168, punched out a slam-bang six-round win over Soldier Joe Montoya, Fort Devens, 178, in the busiest scrap

Connie Seeking New Pitchers

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 16 (INS)—Connie Mack, president of the Philadelphia Athletics, today was looking around for two new pitchers after losing his 19th and 20th ball players to Uncle Sam.

"I guess I'll have to rebuild my pitching staff from scratch," baseball's grand old man said in announcing that Dick Fowler, soon to be inducted into the Canadian army, and Calvin Collidge McIrvin, already stationed somewhere in Texas, would not be with the A's this summer.

Re-election of Connie Mack for the seventh time as president and treasurer of the Athletic Baseball Club also was announced.

Brookline Threatens Wakefield Six's Rule

Defending champion Wakefield High will be faced with a most serious threat of being removed from its standing at the top of the Eastern Mass. Hockey League tonight at the Arena when third place Brookline offers the opposition in the sixth four-game session of the season.

In the other contests, Hudson, deadlocked for the leadership, will be tangling with last place Somerville; Dedham, clinging onto the first division, will be up against Natick while Malden will try to notch up its second triumph of the campaign at the expense of the ambitious Lexington outfit.

CZARNOTA SETS PACE

Brookline, boasting a high scoring defense combination in Joe Gully and Johnny Nason, apparently hit its true stride last week against Lexington. The Wealthy-towners lived up to their early season promise in romping to a 3-1 victory as this pair of points, assisted greatly by Goalie Dennie O'Leary on the defense, stole all honors.

Wakefield, after a temporary slump, rebounded nicely to resume its place at the top of the league. With Joe Czarnota setting the offensive pace, Wakefield once again looks like the team to beat out for the championship.

Meanwhile, Hudson High will probably find Somerville a much softer test than the Dedham six of last week. Hudson's scoring aces, Bob Morgan and Dan Beauregard, will probably run into their strongest defense in Johnny "Stonewall" Jackson in the Somerville strings.

At the Boston Garden, the Greater Boston Interscholastic Hockey League standings were in for another possible shake-up as the four first division teams again battled among themselves, leaving the second half of the loop to fight its way up.

DEPENDS ON SONGINS

In the opening doubleheader, Stoneham and Medford were trying to dissolve their deadlock on fourth place while the Arlington slim lead attempted to stave off the bid of second place, defending champion, Melrose. Completing the card, Belmont took on Rindge Tech and Cambridge Latin tangled with Newton.

Walpole, in the Bay State session at the Arena, loomed as the winner of the junior league title, providing the Songin brothers, Ed and Walter, were able to maintain their pace against Framingham, only other undefeated team in the loop, at the Arena.

Other games on the St. Botolph st. program pitted Wellesley vs. Waltham; Norwood vs. Needham and Boston College High vs. Watertown.

WILD SCORING MARKS HIGH SCHOOL GAMES

In two wild scoring games, Medford nipped Stoneham, 4 to 3, and Melrose came from behind to tie Arlington, 5 to 5, in the first half of the G. B. I. program at the Garden this afternoon.

In the first period of the Medford-Stoneham fracas, Stoneham got away to an early lead when a Cogan to Doherty pass clicked in a play that started at center ice. Fred Trebino fed Bill Garrity a perfect pass in front of the net to tie it up. A Doherty to Cogan pass sent Stoneham into the lead again but it was short lived as Medford tied it up on Johnny Garrity's first goal and went ahead a few minutes later when he notched his second.

Johnny Garrity's third goal in the opening minutes of the final stanza put the game on ice for Medford.

Stoneham came back strong and El Nazarian's goal made it 4 to 3. Stoneham outplayed Medford for the rest of the period but Dick Desmond smothered numerous shots to save a Medford victory.

In the fastest schoolboy game of the season, Melrose held an inspired Arlington team to 5-5 tie.

Cronin's two goals early in the first period put Melrose away to a good lead, but Massucco got one of them back on a long shot.

The second period was a repetition of the first as Melrose got two more quick goals and Massucco sank another long shot for Arlington.

The Spy Ponders, who had promised this game to their coach, Charley Downes, who leaves for the air corps next week, came to life and pounded Melrose for three quick goals to take a one-point lead. That one point looked awfully big, but with less than 30 seconds left to play, Cronin broke through the Arlington defense, took a pass out from Cahoon and knotted the count.

AHL in Last 4 Game Tilts For Duration

By the Associated Press

Eight teams of the American Hockey League will square off tonight in what may be the circuit's last four-game program of the season, and possibly for the duration of the war.

The New Haven Eagles, whose home attendance was crippled by the ban on Eastern pleasure driving, will suspend operations after two games this week-end. Unless another location can be found for the club, the league will be reduced to seven teams and the New Haven players distributed among the remaining squads.

Tonight's headliner will be at Hershey, where the first-place Bears of the Eastern Division tangle with the Buffalo Bisons, the leaders in the Western half of the league.

New Haven will be at Washington tonight, endeavoring to climb out of the Eastern Division cellar. The Eagles trail the Lions by a point and a victory would enable them to bow out of the league in third place since Washington will be idle tomorrow night.

At Pittsburgh tonight, the Hornets will clash with the Indianapolis Capitals, who hold second place in the Western Division, four points behind Buffalo and three points in front of the Hornets.

The fourth game will be at Cleveland, where the second-place Providence Reds of the Eastern Sector clash with the Barons, Western cellar dwellers.

LYNN CLASSICAL MASTER QUITS OVER SUNDAY GAMES

First reaction to the release of the Lynn Classical football schedule for this coming season was the submission of his resignation as headmaster today by Fred C. Mitchell, principal of the secondary school for the past 27 years.

Mitchel professed opposition to Sunday football and objection to the 10-game schedule the school board drafted for the Classical grid team next fall.

Mitchel sent his resignation to Harvey S. Gruver, superintendent of schools.

Mitchel had been cited by members of the board for his failure to attend the meeting of the Headmasters' Association last Saturday at the Massachusetts General Hospital when the association refused to rescind a previous ruling banning Sunday football. Lynn Classical was one of nine schools outlawed by the association last fall.

N. H. L. NOTES

Here's one for mathematically minded fans. Detroit has won four and tied one game with Canadiens in five starts. Bruins have beaten the Red Wings three times, tied them once and lost one decision. But in six games, the Rossmen haven't been able to get better than an even break with the Frenchmen . . . Coach Dick Irvin of Canadiens refuses to classify Syl Apps as a hockey player. He says "Apps is a broken field runner." Yet, it's a safe bet that Irvin would like to have that broken field runner on his hockey club . . . Young Cliff Malone, nephew of the famous Joe Malone, all-time top scorer in the N. H. L., scored seven goals for St. Michael's against St. Patrick's in Montreal and also plays for the Loyola Seniors and the Wing Wheelers of the Mount Royal Junior League. The game in which he went on that scoring spree was his second of the day . . . It looks like both Hershey and New Haven are washed up in the International League.

The Eagles could get by in New Haven if the Potolofs would get Eddie Powers some hockey players. But with a population of less than 3000, Hershey relies upon Harrisburg and Reading fans.

Durable Ted Vogel Future Gil Dodds

By HERB FINNEGAN

There's a kid running the mile in the open meet at Malden today who, come the next Olympics, will be one of America's standbys in the longer distances. His name is Ted Vogel, and he's a senior at St. Mary's High in Waltham.

At the tender age of 17, Master Ted has 17 prizes in road racing to show for his efforts, a remarkable achievement considering that he never ran in competition until Labor Day of 1941.

Ted's marathoning career started in amusing fashion.

BEAT CARS HOME

"I was attending BC High two years ago," said the pink and white youngster. "Street car service to Watertown was slow. I bet some of the kids a nickel I could run to Watertown faster than the trolley car would get them there, another nickel that I could make it in less than an hour. I won both bets."

Ted likes to gallop. In the summer of '41 he was in a caddy camp at Wianno, and he bet some of the other caddies he could run from Hyannis to Osterville (6 miles) in less than an hour. "I did it in 40 minutes," said Ted, "but I didn't have any witnesses, and they made me do it over again the next night before I could collect. Moe Lyons, a Harvard runner at the time, accompanied me on my second trip, and we both were under the hour limit easily."

Endurance no end has Master Vogel. He ran a 12-miler at Providence on Labor Day of '41 and finished 30th. Then he finished 13th in a field of 59, in the N. E. A-A Salem to Lawrence (20-mile) championship when he barely had turned 16.

Last spring he was ninth in the Cathedral 10-mile, and in August he trailed Johnny Kelley by only 150 yards in the N. E. six-mile championship. Those were some of the highlights. There were other races of various distances in between.

26 MILES IN 4 DAYS

Now comes the killer-diller. On the Labor Day week-end of '42, Master Ted finished fifth in a six-mile run at Providence on a Friday night. On Sunday there was a 17-miler at Springfield, and Ted arose at 5 a. m., breakfasted, and started for his destination. But the "thumbing" was bad that morning, Ted arrived only a few minutes before the race with no time for lunch and was so weak he finished 20th. But there was a three-mile run at the Scotch picnic the follow day and with a good meal or two under his belt he felt stronger and finished third.

Twenty-six miles of road racing in four days just after he turned his 17th birthday. Isn't that a record?

That couldn't have lasted, of course. Too much for a man's system, let alone a boy's.

Lucky for Ted, Walter Brown had seen him in one of his summer races, and gave him a letter of introduction to Jack Ryder. The kid met the B. C. coach at the Scotch picnic, and almost floored him when he asked: "May I come out tomorrow?" After all that running!

WORKS FOR SPEED

Well, Jack has had the boy under his wing all fall concentrating on speed work. "He's too young for distance racing," says Jack, who never figured marathoning did the human system any good. And where Ted couldn't break five minutes for the mile when he first reported he's doing 4:40 today and getting faster every month. He's long, has a nice chest for a youngster, and when he gets rid entirely of his road race shuffle he's going to be a champion.

We saw him on the Heights boards the other day when he did 1:24 for a 600, and that's flying for a kid who never had any speed work until this fall.

Didn't he miss the road racing? "Yup," grins Ted, "but not as much as Mr. Ryder suspects. I got a yearning for the open road in October, sneaked off to South Warwick and finished seventh in the 10-mile run. But don't tell Mr. Ryder. He might get mad at me."

ANOTHER MacMITCHELL?

Vogel never has had a chance to run against kids his own age. When he was at BC High, there was no track team. Now at St. Mary's, the school is not a member of the headmaster's association, and Ted finds himself barred from the big school meets.

At the state interscholastic cross-country championships conducted by BU at Weston in November, Ted pleaded for a chance to run.

"Okay," he was told, "but if you win, it won't count, and there won't be any prize for you."

"I didn't care," said Ted. "I just wanted the satisfaction of winning. I was hundreds of yards ahead of the second man and broke both the course and state records for the event. I never realized I could get so fast in a couple of months."

So keep an eye on Master Ted Vogel, the hitch-hiking distance man. If he gets a chance to go to college he'll be another Leslie MacMitchell. If he doesn't, the BAA will have another star to pair with Gil Dodds.

THOMAS KEENE, JR.
Harvard's Mighty Mike

WILLIAMS SIX AT HARVARD

"Iron Mike," a moniker made famous in football this past autumn by Holovak at Boston College, might now be aptly appropriated by an unsung hero at Harvard. But hardly through the pulverizing physical pressure that the All-America backfield ace could muster is young Mike Keene, a formidable foe.

This slight and slender basketballer is strong rather in that telling yet intangible stuff of the spirit that some fancy as "intestinal fortitude" or plain "guts." For young Keene has been in there pitching the basketball to relieve the best of them on the current Crimson quintet, even though handicapped by a cumbersome cast on his right wrist.

An invaluable auxiliary for pep and morale as well as substitute service, this lad will see action again tonight in Philly, where Coach Earl Brown's Cantabs take on the hapless Pennsylvanians on the colossal Palestra court.

Harvard should rebound into the win column in its afternoon hockey encounter with Williams at the Boston Skating Club, especially since the boys from the Berkshires are running pretty thin 'n ice talent this season.

McNutt Green Lights Softball Tourney

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Jan. 16 (INS)—Terming softball a "popular and inexpensive sport which should be continued and extended," WMC Chief Paul V. McNutt today dispelled any doubt that the annual national softball tournament would not be held in Detroit this year.

"Softball certainly is one popular and inexpensive sport which should be continued and extended," McNutt said in his wire to Raymond Johnson, a Nashville sports writer. "I hope, therefore, that the Amateur Softball Ass'n will make every effort to stimulate this worthwhile and wholesome sport."

ORDER PLAYERS FOR BLACKHAWKS

CHICAGO, Jan. 15 (INS)—In the wake of the poor showing made by the Chicago Blackhawks in the National Hockey League race, Maj. Frederick McLaughlin, chairman of the Blackhawk board, tonight ordered his manager, Paul Thompson to "get more players."

The order was sent to Thompson who is now in Canada on personal business. Thompson will start search for more players in Canada.

NAZIS ADMIT ARMY IN TRAP

BERLIN (From German Broadcasts), Jan. 16 (AP)—The German high command said today "in the area of Stalingrad our troops who have been engaged there for weeks in heroic defensive battles against the enemy ATTACKING FROM ALL SIDES, repelled further attacks yesterday by strong enemy infantry and tank formations."

(Thus the high command told the German people for the first time that the troops—estimated at from 200,000 to 300,000—which pressed into Stalingrad last fall were trapped there, sealed in a Soviet-surrounded pocket between the Don and Volga.)

(The German radio beamed a broadcast to the trapped troops two days ago appealing to them to hold fast—but home transmissions for the German people said nothing of the plight of the force, estimated by the Russians as the remnants of 22 divisions.)

"The leadership and troops thus again gave a shining example of the heroism of German soldiery," the daily war bulletin said.

Nazis Score Hit on Russ-Bound Convoy—Billowing smoke rises high into the North Atlantic sky after a German plane, hit by anti-aircraft fire, crashed into a United Nations merchant ship and caused it to explode. A U. S. naval officer took the photograph from the deck of another vessel in the Russia-bound convoy. The ship at right is turning to avoid the conflagration.
